Protection—Monopoly—Thiers.

Among the statesmen of France, there was no other thought of for Provisional President than Adolphe Thiers. In calm, bright summer weather, any sort of figure head may serve the State but, amid hurricanes and convulsions, the foremost ability and the ripest experience are indispensable. Over seventy years of age he has outlived ambition and henceforth gives the remnant of his days to the salvation of his devasted, prostrate country.

M. Thiers, it is well known, is a thorough-going protectionist. As no one ever mistook him for a fool, we presume he is classed by Mr. Mill and his disciples with those who intend by protection to plunder the many for the aggrandizement of the few. Here is what he says (in his great speech of Jan 26, 1870), on the subject of monopolies as affected by protection:

"It is urged that all the protections accorded to industry constitute monopolies, and that, to enrich a few monopolists we burden the whole country. It is true there is a monopoly, but it is not in France, it is abroad. I desire to say that this little monopoly, which you accord to French industry, destroys the monopoly of foreign industry.

"When England and France alone worked up cotton as you know, what was the price of a kilogram of cotton yarn which is now worth three francs? It was worth 27 francs. It is true that this was at the period of our wars, and when the raw material bore a high price but after the peace the price was still as high as 14 francs.

"It has gone down to three francs. And here is the reason why. In proportion as the French production was developed, there was, in spite of prohibition, a sort of penetration between the two markets. We created a competition with England, and thus the cotton fell to three francs.

"What purpose, then, has the monopoly served? It has compelled the foreigner to lower his prices. Every time that you give a protection to a national product you cause the price of the foreign product to be lowered, and you prevent monopoly.

"Another example more recent. When the linen industry was destroyed in France by the English production by power, a kilogram of thread was worth seven francs. We protected the linen industry in France. This protection permitted competition, and the French product compelled the English manufacturers to lower their prices to three francs fifty centimes.

"If, then, there is anything evident, it is that this pretended monopoly, this sacrifice of a few centimes, produces a general lowering of price, which is for the benefit of the whole country. If you are not willing that the French manufacturers should fabricate, because you have to pay 20 per cent more than in England, it will end in the English making you pay 100 per cent more.

"If England were the only country to produce certain objects, could you have them at the same price? Certainly not. It is competition sustained by a just protection which [illegible] foreign monopoly. Those who [illegible] real unrestricted competition, [illegible] Do you know what [illegible] It is that no nation [illegible] make any surrender of its [illegible] It is that no one should say that [illegible] manufacture cotton, [illegible] as cheaply as [illegible] shall say that it will not [illegible] because it cannot fabricate [illegible] neighbor that it [illegible] that it will not raise grain, under the pretext that grain is produced more dearly than in other countries. The nation which should reason thus would exhibit the reasoning of an idiot. Do you know what is the true competition of nation with nation, the universal competition? It is a noble emulation on the part of each people,—the noble emulation of producing everything and even that which it produces with less advantage than other people. This competition has, as its result, the reduction of prices to the lowest attainable standard, through the entire world."

The Great Surrender.

M. THIERS ON THE VERSAILLES CONVENTION AND ORLEANIST RESTORATION.

A correspondent of the London Daily News at Bordeaux narrates a conversation with M. Thiers at M. Gambetta's office. M. Thiers had called to hear the news, and was received by one of the Minister's secretaries, as he did not wish to disturb M. Gambetta himself, having heard that he was unwell. "Official dispatches confirming the very worst rumors that have been circulated about the capitulation of Paris arrived. M. Thiers expressed his grief and indignation in no measured language. He said he was 'disgusted' with Trochu and that Jules Favre had covered himself with everlasting disgrace. He, after his proud speech, 'not an inch of our territory, nor a stone of our fortresses,' should have cut off his right hand rather than sign the horrible treaty. He attributed the fall of Paris to culpable incapacity and carelessness on the part of Trochu and most of the members of the Provisional Government. There had been a shocking and improvident waste of provisions early in the siege. On this occasion—a memorable occasion—I heard from M. Thiers' own lips confirmation of what I stated the other day that he when a member of the Committee of National Defense, had vainly urged and entreated Trochu, before Paris was invested, to occupy and fortify St. Germain and those very heights toward Celle St. Cloud which were ineffectually attempted to be taken during the feeble sortie of the 19th. The member of the Administration, with whom I was then said to M. Thiers, 'I have watched your literary and political career for forty years, and the saying of yours which I most admire is that of 1849: "The Republic is the Government which divides us the least." Allow me to ask whether, under existing circumstances you are willing to repeat that dictum.' Without a moment's hesitation M. Thiers vehemently replied, 'I do. I am not now an Orleanist, I go in frankly for the Republic and it would have been better for you if your Government had been more decidedly Republican from the beginning. A great many Orleanists have been trafficking with Prussia. I am ashamed of them and repudiate them.' This important expression of M. Thiers' opinion was delivered aloud in the presence of several persons and, therefore, I can without any breach of confidence, repeat it. I was surprised to hear M. Thiers speak as he did, for up to-day I had thought him not only an Orleanist but the centre of Orleanist intrigue."

The New York Tribune speaking of Mr. Disraeli's late word says: "If a rude speech is sufficient cause of war, why should not we bully a little too? Why should not the High Commission be politely informed by Secretary Fish that this is a good opportunity to come to a clear understanding on the subject of insolence in Parliament and especially that we do not mean to stand any more of Mr. Disraeli's speeches!"

G. M. D. Bloss of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has established the reputation of the worst penman in the world. On a recent wager as to the signification of his signature one printer guessed it was 'Bird of Freedom' and the other 'Warranted to Wash.' Bloss himself, having been questioned, declared the mysterious characters meant 'France as a Republic.'

CURRENT NOTES.

A Board of Scandinavian Immigration has been established in Maine and a resident commissioner is to be located in Gothenburg, Sweden, for the purpose of promoting the emigration of Swedes to that State.

Senator Morton's Committee on Southern outrages have ferreted out the secrets of the Ku-klux and traced most of the disturbances in the South to the operations of this order. Hence the measures for the suppression of this dangerous association.

George Cruikshank had no idea of becoming an artist in early life. He began his career as a sailor, was afterwards an actor, finally took up the pencil simply as a means of aiding his parents, who were very poor, and soon established his reputation.

Alexander H. Stephens' health has baffled the shrewdest guesses of his physicians. They have been predicting his speedy death for the past five years, and yet though very delicate, he is as likely to live as most men in much sounder and better condition.

One Col. Daniel Portman, living near Brownsville, Texas, a few weeks ago left his wife all his property, amounting to $50 000 or $60,000, arranged his affairs, under the assumption that he was going to travel for several years abroad, and then drowned himself in the Rio Grande, leaving word that he had found life too heavy a burden to bear.

The London Saturday Review says: "The whole history of diplomatic transactions between England and America consist of aggressions and threats on the part of the United States, too often provoked by excessive English pliability. If overbearing rudeness proves to be once more successful, it may be predicted that the next demand will extend to the annexation of the English dominions in North America."

A biographical sketch of William Winston Seaton, so well known as the editor of the National Intelligencer, is published. It is written by his daughter, and is full of letters, some not very important from prominent persons. Some of the anecdotes are very amusing, and anything but complimentary to the person involved. There is one of General Scott which is delightfully absurd and must be true. The General was fond of quoting Pope, and having done so on one occasion, was asked by one of his aides: "Is that from Shakspeare, General?" Scott turned majestically, and transfixing the unfortunate querist by his severity of look and tone, replied: "Sir, I am deeply humiliated that a member of my personal staff should be so ignorant as to confound Pope with Shakspeare. Be good enough to leave the room, Sir!"

PERSONAL NOTES.

A Southern editor proposes that Raphael Semmes be appointed to serve on the Alabama Claims Commission! "Which the same" is a delightfully cool suggestion.

O'Donovan (Rossa), the Irish exile, has been engaged to deliver twenty-four lectures throughout the country, within sixty days, for which he is to receive $6,000 and all expenses.

Robert Browning has grown very old in appearance since his wife's death, though the vigor of his constitution is unimpaired. Only 58, he would be mistaken for 70, judged by his face.

Disraeli is reported to have said that he intends to write three more novels and then retire from the field of authorship. They will all be political it is conjectured, and one of them will attempt to to show what England must do to retain her prestige.

Nast is a Dutchman, Hennessey is an Irishman, and Linton, the head of all the engravers is an Englishman, who has not yet been in the country five years. Previous to him, the best engraver was an Englishman—one John Andrew, who died in Boston. The Ward brothers are also English.

When Thackeray was in Boston he asked the proprietor of a hotel on Sunday morning where Theodore Parker preached, and when the man of smiles and bows said he did not know, he exclaimed in his most astonished tones: "Don't know? Why, sir, we've heard his voice away across the Atlantic. He is the greatest preacher in America."

When Bret Harte was in Chicago a few weeks since, he accepted an invitation to meet about eighty people at a dinner to be given in his honor by a lawyer of high standing by the name of Wirt Dexter. A paper had been drawn up and signed by a number of prominent gentlemen pledged to five hundred dollars each for the purpose of aiding in the establishment of a literary monthly to be under the control of Mr. Harte. The plan was to buy out the Lake Side Monthly and present it to him and it was understood that whatever additional money was necessary to make the publication a success should be forthcoming. To make a long story short, Mr. Harte failed to put in an appearance at the dinner referred to, much to the annoyance of Mr. Dexter and the ladies and gentlemen who had assembled to meet him. He pleaded the illness of his wife as an excuse, but the apology was voted unsatisfactory, and it was resolved to put his acquaintance and destroy the subscription.

Suggestions as to Taxation.

David A. Wells, late Special Commissioner of Revenue, has addressed a report to the New York Legislature in which he sets forth his ideas for a new system of local taxation. The plan is simple, being embraced in three brief propositions, viz:

First. Provide for the taxation of all corporations created by the State, which are in the nature of a monopoly. "Of such corporations, the gas company is the type." This tax will reach (by direct tax or license) all banks, railroads and stock companies of every kind, manufacturing companies, private banks, &c., and will yield a safe and certain revenue, without hardship to either the corporations or the community.

Second. "To tax land, exclusive of buildings, at a uniform rate of valuation of fifty per cent of its true marketable value." This is shown to be no hardship, but an equitable system of tax, because land derives its market value, not from intrinsic qualities of its own, but from its proximity to stores of accumulated labor or personal property.

Third. That the truest index to personal property has been shown, by experience, to be the rental value of the house occupied—a man's income is best measured by his rent. Hence, it is proposed, either—

(1) To assess the house, as real estate, fifty per cent on its market value, and add the same amount to cover personal effects contained in it or, in other words, all improvements at their full value as the basis for a personal property tax, or else—

(2) "Tax buildings, conjointly with land, as real estate, at a uniform valuation, and then, as the equivalent for all taxation on personal property, tax the occupier, be he owner or tenant of any building, used as a dwelling or for any other purpose on a valuation of three times the rental value of the premises occupied."

A correspondent of the London Times with Gen. Von Werder's army, describes the battle on January 9th between that army and the French under Bourbaki, near Belfort, and which resulted in the defeat and retreat of the French. According to the correspondent the German force numbered 40 000 men, while Bourbaki brought into the field 130,000 men. The French unsuccessfully attacked the Germans for three days in succession, and on the evening of the third day they retreated in confusion, and were pursued by the Germans. The correspondent explains the defeat of the French by saying that the horses and men of the army were in a starving condition, as they had had no feed for three or four days.

Democratic Issue in 1872.

[From the New York Times.]

The debate which arose out of the resolution of the Indiana Legislature when before the Senate the other day, was not idle or purposeless. Indiana Democracy was of the Copperhead stripe during the war, and its vain attempt to impugn the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment shows that its character is unchanged. The point to be determined is, how far the Democratic party as a national party, may be judged by the action of that portion of it which is represented at Indianapolis. Senator Morton saw the opportunity and its connection with the issues in the national canvass of 1872 and adroitly turned it to account. It remained for the man whom the World recently elevated to the leadership of its party in the Senate to render Mr. Morton's efforts a success.

Three paths were open to the Democratic Senators. They might have allowed the Indiana resolution to pass without notice from their side—though the damaging accusations of Mr. Morton would have rendered this extremely mortifying. Or they might have deprecated discussion of what the Congressional Democratic Committee last session called "dead issues," and demonstrated the strength of the moderate element—if there really is any—by asserting the superior sagacity of a policy like that for which the Louisville Courier Journal has consistently contended. It is just possible that had Mr. Thurman been permitted to shape the course of his party, this conciliatory view would have been adopted. Or lastly they might have accepted the reactionary and revolutionary manifesto from Indiana [illegible] tion of the party [illegible] Frank Blair, the [illegible] leadership, [illegible]

There can be no [illegible] position of the [illegible] whether in ref[illegible]ence to the [illegible] are Democr[illegible] upon the platfo[illegible] their party in 1868 [illegible] the Senator whom the [illegible] have made their mouthpiece [illegible] party in the Senate, [illegible] become their leader, entertain a different idea. He is not ashamed of the Brodhead letter, in his opinion, it is a pretty feather in his cap. He does not accept [illegible] since the war as a finality [illegible] struction he declares that [illegible] shall stand until it can be [illegible] longer. The only difference between [illegible] terance of to-day and his utterance [illegible] one which he frankly avowed in his speech at Jefferson City, before his election as Senator. When he wrote the Brodhead [illegible] he assigned to the President to be [illegible] if he happened to be Democratic—the [illegible] of employing the military to overthrow the newly organized Governments in the Southern States. The Alleged "Jobs" in San Domingo.

The Commissioners to San Domingo have made a careful examination—as part [illegible] requested by the President—into the [illegible] the rumors concerning lots on Samana Bay said to be staked out for General Grant and his immediate friends. A correspondent of the New York Tribune writes:

The most important witness was Victor Desruisseaux, the President of the Municipal Council, and custodian of all the records of land and other official documents. He stated that he was in charge of all the Government documents and records that were saved at the time Luperon, in command of the Telegrafo shelled the town and destroyed it by fire, two or three years ago, as well as all the records of an official character of transactions since that time. The Commission examined the records of the deeds, mortgages, transfers, leases, &c., in the hands of the gentleman named, and all transactions relating to citizens of the United States were translated into English by persons officially attached to the Commission and properly certified. These will be incorporated in the report, and the documents will be presented in their official form, entire. And here is the important fact. The only Americans owning land in the vicinity of Samana Bay are Mr. Joseph W. Fabens and his grantees, Spofford Bros. of New York, the owners of the Tybee steamer which plies between here and New York who have about thirty acres west of the village and back of their wharf and warehouse and Judge O'Sullivan of New York, who has a grant of a tract of about thirty acres lying between that of Spofford Bros. and the village. Both are leases for a low rent, in one case $112 per annum, and renewable at will in perpetuity, with the clause added "if there be no law to prevent the same." The alcalde thought the title a very doubtful one. All the other grants to Americans are of small lots by the municipality to resident traders, or for short terms, as Mr. Burr, whose lease of his plantation is for three years. His, however, is leased from a private individual, who holds under an ancient Spanish title. No transfers of Government or municipal lands about the bay or vicinity have been made since the treaty, and none to Americans at any time, except those mentioned above. This sets at rest all the scandal about American officers speculating in Samana lots and lands while they were negotiating a treaty.

The New York Tribune is tracing up the tracks of the Tammany politicians and finds that the leading men who were poor a few years since, have suddenly acquired immense wealth out of offices the legitimate emoluments of which would barely afford them a comfortable support. In pursuit of information on this point the Tribune has been overhauling the records and finds that during the year 1870, Tweed & Son, purchased real estate in New York city to the amount of $509,350, Peter B. Sweeney & Co., $193,000, and Richard B. Connolly & Co., $80,977. How much they have invested in stocks and bonds and other securities is not known. New York city furnishes a good illustration of how the Democrats would rule the country if they had a chance, and is a fair sample of Democratic "retrenchment and reform."

"Of Evils Chose the Least."

Under this caption the New York Free Press, a Democratic paper [illegible] at its head as its candidate for the next Presidency, Senator Thurman, of Ohio, rebukes in the very strongest terms the infamous ring which controlled the elections in that city until the power of the United States was interposed, and shows that Democratic frauds there have been gigantic and overwhelming, and it welcomes the intervention of the Government as the only means to put down corruption and secure for the people an honest choice of their Representatives. The article admits more than the Republicans ever charged. Read it, you who denounce the act of Congress to secure honest elections.

Paying Southern Claims.

Senator Carpenter of Wisconsin is doing what he can to prevent the National Treasury from being plundered to make up the losses which the rebels suffered during the war. From his remarks on one of these bills in the Senate a few days ago the reader may get some information as to the nature of these claims. He showed that if we lose sight of fundamental principles we can find excuses enough and reasons enough to pay every claim that may be presented. "We are to stand," said he, "upon the rights of the Government engaged in public war against these States, or we must pay all these claims; and we ought to pay them all. A rebel is a citizen; he lives within the legal dominion of the United States; and when he is in court, as the Senator from Kentucky says, he is entitled to the safeguards which the Constitution throws around a traitor on trial in a Federal tribunal. But that is not this case; that is not the case that existed in this country from 1861 to 1865. Rebellion had swollen beyond the power of the civil arm to control it. Your marshals and constables and sheriffs were silent and powerless; your civil law was set at naught; your Constitution was at an end, so far as that country was concerned. You did not go there to enforce the civil administration; you went there exercising the war power of the Government; you went there to prosecute and make war against a public enemy. Now it is proposed to turn round and indemnify the losses you made; to say to any State that hereafter may rebel, 'We send to-day the Secretary of War to burn and ravage and lay waste; but do not be too much excited about this; next year we will send the Secretary of the Treasury to make it all blossom again like a garden.'"

To such a statement of the case as that presented by Senator Carpenter, there can be no answer. Yet it may be expected that those who rebelled and suffered losses thereby will continue to urge their "claims" for reimbursement; and if the Democratic party should obtain power every one of the "claims" would probably be paid out of the Treasury, including the cash value which the slaveholders placed upon their "chattels," who were freed by the operation of war.

A General Quarrel.

A suggestive correspondence, says the New York Times, is in progress in Ohio and Indiana with reference to intrigues which culminated in the nomination of Seymour for the Presidency in 1868, and which contemplate the nomination of Hendricks in 1872. The over-officiousness of Hendricks' friends in presenting him in advance as the most eligible of Democratic candidates, is the immediate occasion of the controversy. The claims of the Indiana politician were somewhat ostentatiously presented by S. S. Cox at a recent gathering in Washington, and were as promptly denied by devoted adherents of Pendleton through Ohio journals. One of these writers accuses Hendricks of treachery in 1868 with having bargained, first with Hancock, next with Tilden, and, lastly, with Pendleton, and with betraying both Hancock and Pendleton to enable the Tilden-Belmont interest to effect the nomination of Seymour. The authors of these allegations declare that this service is to be rewarded by the Tildens and Belmonts in 1872 at the expense of Hoffman. Tammany, it is asserted, will be allowed to play with Hoffman as the Western Democrats were allowed to play with Pendleton, and with the same result. At the critical moment a break will occur, and Tilden & Co. expect then to be able to lay Hoffman upon the shelf, and nominate Hendricks. Ohio Democrats protest that by way of avenging Pendleton's former defeat, the game in favor of Hendricks shall not succeed. It is a very pretty quarrel.

A Reminder to San Francisco.

One would suppose that the serenity of San Francisco would hardly be disturbed by the new town of Kalama; yet we find the that newspaper of San Francisco uttering a warning to those interested in that city, and telling them that if they intend to maintain the commercial supremacy they have so long enjoyed, they must bestir themselves to counterwork the new commercial points to the north of them, which are now springing into existence, and which claim that, on the completion of the new railroad across the continent, they will be able to outbid San Francisco for the trade of Asia. The Alta says that San Francisco must rouse from her lethargy and prepare to contend with her northern rivals. That paper is certainly wise in foreseeing that the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad will open new routes for commerce, which will tend to diminish the relative importance of San Francisco as the great supereminent metropolis of the Pacific coast.

A letter from the Commissioner of the Commissioner of the General Land Office to the Register at Oregon City, contains these paragraphs:

By the second section of the Act of March 12, 1860 (U. S. Statutes, vol. 12, p. 3) it is provided that all selections of swamp lands in townships then surveyed, must be made within a certain period, and that time has elapsed.

In townships yet to be surveyed, swamp selections can be made whenever the State authorities indicate the method by which they will make the selections.

The proper course to be taken to secure the lands will be understood from the above. The State has not yet indicated to the General Land Office whether it prefer to have the selections made by agents in the field or by notes of the surveys.

Another Democratic paper has begun to sing praises to Sumner. 'Tis the Albany Democrat that joins the Portland Herald in this most delightful and agreeable exercise. A few weeks ago it was Sumner the beast, Sumner the monster, Sumner, the emasculated; leader of Massachusetts Radicalism. Now it is Sumner the great, Sumner the honest, Sumner the good. The plaudits of the Portland organ are echoed back by the organ at Albany, and [illegible] which have been uttering curses upon Sumner for years are now singing their loudest peans to his name.

The Herald has falsely said that Secretary Chadwick has not drawn any warrants in the absence of appropriations. We have shown that he has done so. Now let the Herald retract the censures it cast on the late Secretary of State, or throw equal censure on Secretary Chadwick. Let it also confess that it made an erroneous statement when it said that Chadwick had drawn such warrants. And, while it is about it, let it tell something about that $500 which it does not deny having received for defending the $75,000 robbery in the canal and locks affair.

OREGON.

At Salem on Thursday the Wallamet stood 21 feet above low water mark.

The larger tributaries of the Wallamet are higher than they have been since the great flood of 1861-62.

Preparations are making to start a skating rink at Salem. Reed's Opera House has been secured for the purpose.

Real estate transactions in Jackson county are said to be unusually lively. Citizens are looking hopefully for railroad communication.

The number of pupils of school age in Jackson county is 1,740. Amount of school fund $3,747 57. Number of quarters of school taught in the county during the past year, 50.

The Jacksonville Sentinel favors the division of the State by the line of the Cascade mountains. A majority of the papers of the State have expressed themselves in favor of the proposition.

The following town officers were elected last week at Jacksonville: N. Fisher, L. Zigler, Jno. Bilger, J. A. Wilson, J. S. Howard, Trustees; U. S. Hayden, Recorder; H. Pape, Treasurer; J. M. McDaniel, Marshal; R. S. Dunlap, Street Commissioner.

The Jacksonville Times says that a few days ago an affray took place between John Ambrose and one Sandy Atkins, in which Ambrose was brutally beaten. Ambrose applied before a Justice for a warrant, but before it could be issued the defendant skedaddled.

FOREIGN NOTES.

During the siege of Paris some curious stories got wind among the besiegers as well as among the citizens of Versailles. The Germans maintained that there was a daily revolution in Paris, and that Gambetta had fled to America, while the Versaillaise firmly believed that the investing army had lost 300,000 men in their combats with the French sorties.

A melancholy feature of the war is the tendency in the French mind to denounce their leaders and accuse them either of imbecility or treason. "I am glad Trochu has resigned," remarked a Frenchman at Versailles on learning that he had retired from command. "I have always more than half believed that story, do you know, about his intending to sell Paris to the Prussians for ten million francs."

General Bourbaki was thus described six months ago by a correspondent: "He is a wonderful swordsman, and often, it is said, performs the feat with which Sir Walter Scott rendered Saladin famous—laying a silk handkerchief on the blade of his scimitar and shredding it in two with an almost imperceptible movement of the arm. It is said that Gen. Bourbaki can even exceed the dexterity of Musa, the Saracen chief, made so renowned by Lord Lytton."

Says the London Daily News: "At a glance Napoleon would have seen where to plant the battery that would have scattered Moltke's finest plans like so many cobwebs. A glance, and his columns would have fallen like thunderbolts on Saxon and Bavarian, and struck the German army in twain as the scythe chops a snake. The road was there by which that critical march could be taken; the road was there by which those guns could be dragged into position; but the great man did not come from east or west, and at last the worn-out nation yielded Paris and threw up its arms."

Perilous Adventure.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

HARRISBURG, Ogn., March 13, 1871.

Yesterday, about 1 o'clock P. M., two men living about five miles above this city, heard some person hallooing on an island in the river opposite their residence, seemingly in great distress.

Taking a skiff they proceeded to the island where they found a man nearly drowned and suffering intensely with cold.

As he was unable to walk, they carried him to their skiff, and conveyed him to their house. After he was somewhat revived, he gave the following particulars relative to his situation:

He gave his name as Franklin Bosford. Says he left Eugene City that morning, about 7 o'clock, in company with another man, in a small canoe, for Albany.

The other man was the owner of the canoe and had come down the river to Eugene City, on his way to Albany.

Mr. Bosford being anxious to go below, and having a heavy carpet-sack to carry, concluded to take his chances in the canoe with him, although the river was very high at the time.

They proceeded on their journey without accident until they arrived at the place above mentioned, when the current drew them broadside against a drift, and capsized their canoe.

Our informant says that as he arose out of the water, he caught hold of the canoe and held to it for something like a quarter or half a mile, during which time his comrade's hat came floating by him.

After floating down, as above stated, the current again drew both him and the canoe under another drift. As he passed under the drift he threw up both his arms and caught hold of a log, but the current being strong, he was forced to let go his hold, and was carried under the drift.

Passing down some distance under the drift, where the force of the current was broken by the logs, he was enabled to climb up through the drift to the top. From there he made his way to the island, where he was found as before stated.

He never saw his comrade after the canoe capsized at the first drift, but as he was in the stern of the canoe, he (Bosford) is certain that he must have been carried by the current directly under the drift and drowned. He told our informant that he was formerly from Canyon City and was at the time on his way to Yakima Valley. He was about 25 years old, had a black mustache, and a crippled hand. His name he never learned.

[It has since turned out that the man who was supposed to be lost was named Finney. He was picked up by a steamboat and saved.—ED. OREGONIAN.]

How Prussia Did It.

The following from the Irish Republic is a statement of the systematic course of discipline pursued through many years by Prussia, and by which France has been conquered:

First, she made a law compelling every child from the age of six to fourteen to go to school, because a battalion of intelligent men are much more easily brought under discipline than a corresponding number of ignorant men. This law bore upon all alike, from the highest to the lowest. Next, she compels every young man of twenty to enter the army for five years, three of which he serves, and, if all is peace, the other two he is furloughed. When the five years are up, he enters the First Corps of Landwehr for a term of years. This is active service. After this he enters the Second Corps of Landwehr at thirty-two. This is the inactive army. At forty-seven he is enrolled in the Landsturm until sixty. He is all his life a soldier, though not always in the ranks. He is able to read and write, and understands the necessity of learning to make rapid marches. He is waked up at midnight and in twenty minutes he is ready for the march, and perhaps is obliged to march a "double quick" for ten miles. This dose is repeated often. He is taught how to march forty miles per day, and he knows that all and every individual in Prussia, from the King's son down to himself, must pass through the same discipline. This reconciles him. Through his knowledge of books he learns the power of France, the power of Germany, and the reasons why he should become a good soldier. He has done so. Behold the result! We sneer at the remark of the Crown Prince that he "would not have attacked McMahon with equal numbers." But he was right. Now he could do so, then he dared not. The Prussians depended upon their power to overwhelm and crush, not by any past fame, but by the force of numbers and the weight of artillery. Educated to the highest standard of military discipline, endurance and rapidity of movement, let us learn from them. These are the very elements we need, intelligence, military discipline and a unity of purpose.

The Ralls-Fay Affair.

From the Jacksonville Times.

The Herald publishes two letters from this place in reference to the sad affair which recently transpired here. The local papers here, unwilling to further wound the feelings of the family of the girl, and equally unwilling to make a statement in advance of a local investigation, which was expected to take place within a few days, refrained from mentioning the occurrence. But a miserable scoundrel who, while pretending sympathy for the unfortunate girl, in order to glut his personal and political animosity against Mr. Fay, parades her shame through the columns of the Herald, and uses her misfortune as the instrument of his private vengeance; and that paper descending to the level of the Mazeppa, for a like reason publishes these letters. The Mercury, Democrat and other "tenders" of the Herald, without waiting to hear both sides of the case, hasten to repeat the story of the lying coward who did not dare append his name to his communication. Upon the unsupported statement of an anonymous correspondent these papers have thrown themselves into ecstacies of virtuous indignation.

We are glad to notice that there are some newspapers in the State who, like ourself, would denounce the crime in fitting terms if it were true; yet, with a spirit of fairness and justice, wish to hear from the other side before proceeding to denounce an individual unheard. We are happy to notice this spirit of candor among some portion of the press of the State. Mr. Fay has publicly denied the charge. He informed the father of the girl of his anxiety for a legal investigation, and offered to facilitate such investigation by all means in his power. From the fact that such investigation is expected to take place, and from a natural reluctance to publish abroad in the newspapers the domestic arrangements—even to refute the infamous slanders of his enemies—Mr. Fay has thus far refrained from publishing a defense, reserving the facts in his possession for the trial. He has not been afraid of a public uprising as the Herald's correspondent intimates; for not only is it not true that the whole community believed him guilty, but, on the contrary, that belief is confined to a few of his political and personal enemies; and the circumstances connecting Mr. Fay with the affair are so absurd and improbable, that there are none of them who really believe it.

The Herald's correspondent carefully conceals the fact that it was Mr. Fay who sent the messenger to the house of the girl's father; that it was he who organized the search; that it was he who sent at his own expense for her mother; that no member of his family, nor in the community, suspected her condition, and that she disappeared without the knowledge of any person in Mr. Fay's house; that it was he who sent for medical attendance, and that it was to his own house he brought her when found; that his family and himself, as well as the community, were ignorant of her condition. He also conceals the fact that while still upon the hill, where Fay and every other man present cheerfully took off their coats and covered the girl to make her as comfortable as possible, while waiting for the carriage, the Herald's sympathetic correspondent was the only man who refused to lend his coat. He insinuates that Fay stood in danger of a mob; but he does not add that when his letter appeared here so great was his terror of personal violence that he would shirk out of town every morning early and remain all day, slinking back when darkness covered his advent, and kept this up for four days, and even at this writing does not dare show his cowardly face upon the streets except at rare intervals when the coast is clear.

In conclusion, we beg to assure Mr. Fay's many friends throughout the State that he is ready and anxious for the fullest and freest judicial investigation of this unfortunate affair. An infamous attempt has been made to blacken his good name by the slanders of cowardly scribblers, and the conspiracy of others to black mail him. His life has been attempted in a most cowardly manner, and his political and personal enemies are enjoying a devilish carnival over what they fondly hope is the ruin of his reputation; but he is confident, and so are his friends, that an investigation will not only develop his innocence, but the most damnable black mail conspiracy ever hatched in the State.

To the above we append the following, which explains itself:

PORTLAND, March 9.—To James D. Fay: We are authorized by J. R. Neil to inform all whom it may concern, that he was the author of the letters to the Herald, alluded to in your dispatch of March 1st.

T. PATTERSON & CO.

On the 1st of March I telegraphed to the proprietors of the Herald for the name of the author of the lying and scandalous letters from this place, in reference to myself and an unfortunate girl, who is being used as the tool of others, to gratify personal and political vengeance. After nine days' deliberation the above answer is given. If the coward and liar whose name is given above were worthy of my notice he should not complain of a want of attention on my part. Our last interview proved his cowardice; his whole career proves his meanness, malignity, and mendacity, and to the judgment of the public we leave him for the present.

JAMES D. FAY.

Natural Wonders in Jackson County.

From a general description of Jackson county, which some one is writing for the Times, we take the following interesting paragraphs:

A brief notice of Lake Majesty and the Devil's Canyons, being within the county limits, may be excused on the plea of jurisdiction. Lake Majesty is situated on—or rather in—this range, 30 miles, more or less, northwest of Fort Klamath. When first seen it appears as an immense well or shaft, 25 miles in circumference, with dark, placid, and apparently stagnant waters, and, with few exceptions, nearly perpendicular walls. Its depth, from the surface, varies according to the rent and ragged condition of the surrounding mountains. Some one orally described it as a vast "hole in the ground," and it may be added everywhere from six to fifteen hundred feet deep. It is thought, by some, to be the crater of an extensive volcano. This opinion is very much strengthened by the various volcanic indications witnessed on every hand. The country immediately surrounding the lake abounds in fragments of vitrified stone, with basalt, feldspar, trap, scoria, ashes, and heaps of burnt and blackened boulders, all tending to confirm the immense upheaval believed to have taken place, and the result of which is seen in the grand curiosity of this all but wizard lake.

In going to the Fort, from Jacksonville, by way of Fowler's Pass—the principal highway for freight teams—we traverse almost the full length of two canyons, the one as we ascend and the other as we descend, the Cascade Mountains. These bear the ugly name of "The Devil's Canyons." The name alone of these deep, dark and dismal gorges would seem to condemn them; but a personal investigation of these hideous and ghastly defiles will prove the name, if it be possible, inadequate to express the wild, unwelcome emotions which they inspire. At any rate, if the region over which his Satanic Majesty presides presents a more withering and terrific aspect than many scenes to be met with in these canyons, I'd rather go where the "woodbine twineth" than investigate his dominions. If we are permitted to reason upon, and draw conclusions from, external appearances, though we may hesitate, falter, and all but cry "impossible," in view of the sublime and marvelous results before us, the conclusion irresistibly forces itself upon us that the simple action of water through the countless ages of the past has wrought this wondrous work. The two springs, which constitute the respective sources of these canyons, and through the action of which the result is what it is, issue from the base of the summit ridge nearly opposite each other, and probably not over four or five hundred yards apart; the waters of the one flowing into Klamath, the other into Rogue river. Their length may be reckoned from ten to fifteen miles, and depth from three to six hundred feet. They are wild, diversified, and romantic in scenery, and contain a number of dashing and noisy waterfalls. Only one of the thousand and one peculiar and interesting curiosities of these time-worn chasms may be mentioned. At intervals, in passing up or down, may be seen in congregations, resembling deserted towns or cities, hundreds of pyramids or obelisks deposed in pleasing chance-neglect, and seeming the reality of some ancient story or legendary tale of departed splendor, wild in tottering ruins, and crumbling beneath the accumulated weight of hoary age; thus, with "speaking quietude," these time worn monuments point to the forgotten past. They are not, as some suppose, "shot up" by some mysterious elemental agency, but through the continuous action of waters from age to age, the yielding pumice having been washed away, these hard concrete formations are exposed, and prove nothing except that they are indigenous to the formation in which they are found. I have called these singular, castle-like phenomena "pyramids or obelisks"—they are neither, but more nearly cones or pinnacles. There is another opinion respecting the formation of these steeples which, as it is not entirely out of the range of probability, may be given for what it is worth. As the country where they are found has been volcanic and subjected to intense heat, and many are found to be hollow or porous in the center, they are thought to be chimneys or escape pipes for the gas or steam generated by the fires beneath, and that the heated vapor escaping thus has had the effect to harden, cement and partially vitrify them.

Says the New York Evening Mail: Mr. Sumner should be the last man to make any opposition to the annexation of San Domingo. The public have not forgotten the labored and often superb rhetoric which he lavished on the frozen wastes of Alaska. Yet for every American who wanted Alaska there are thousands who would like to see San Domingo open to our adventurous citizens. How will the Senator who was willing to pay seven millions in gold for a forbidding wilderness deny the superior advantages offered by the trade of San Domingo, for which we are to pay less than a quarter of that sum? We know that consistency is not the highest of the virtues, but such a sudden change of front on the part of Mr. Sumner will require some explanation.

Several persons seem to have fallen into the error of supposing that a communication on Judge Boise's opinion on State warrants, which was published in the OREGONIAN a few days since over the letters "J. N. D." was written by J. N. Dolph, Esq. This supposition is a mistake. The letter was written in this city at a time when Mr. Dolph was absent, and he never saw it till his attention was called to it at Salem, after its publication.

No matter to me about Ackerman's One Dollar Store. I am able to sell goods in my line as cheap as any merchant on the Pacific coast. My stock is bought for cash, and there is no use for any one to try to undersell me. Therefore, go it, boys, and don't think you will get all the dollars, as I intend to go after some of them, myself, on the corner of First and Alder streets, Odd Fellow's Temple. Isaac Barman, Fashionable Clothier.

SPRING STYLES.—KOHN & FISHEL, as usual, are the first to fill their store with the new Spring Styles of Clothing and Furnishing Goods. Their stock is very large, and their goods of the best quality, and latest styles. Messrs. Kohn & Fishel buy their goods in large quantities, consequently, get them at low rates and can afford to sell cheap, which they intend to do.

They respectfully invite their friends and patrons to give them a call.

THE NEW AND VALUABLE IMPROVEMENT IN SECURING DENTAL FIXTURES.—Patent applied for in January, A. D. 1871—is used only by the inventor, Dr. C. H. Mack, Office of Mack & Welch, in the Odd Fellows' Building, Portland.

TEA.—The best quality of Young Hyson, Gunpowder and Orange, of direct importation can be had at C. M. Martin's Grocery Store on First street.

Also, Maple Sugar direct from New England.
German Herring, and other kinds of Fish, fresh, salt and dried.
Italian Chestnuts and all sorts of nuts.
Oranges, Lemons and all fruits of the season.
Hams, Poultry and Game.
Fresh Eggs, Butter and Vegetables, and all kinds of Family Groceries at the most reasonable prices, delivered in any part of the city upon short notice.

BARBOUR'S LINEN THREAD is strong and even, and is superior to any other in the market. Try it and be convinced of its superiority.

BARBOUR'S CARPET THREAD, made from the finest quality of IRISH FLAX, is stronger, better and cheaper than any other.

"Time tries all things," and has proven that WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY is the remedy par excellence, for the cure of coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, bronchitis, asthma, phthisic, sore throat, influenza, and "last, not least," consumption.

TWO LECTURES

ON

Geology of the Great Basin of the Interior of Oregon.

BY

REV. THOMAS CONDON,

AT

PHILHARMONIC HALL,

TUESDAY & WEDNESDAY EVEN'GS, March 21st and 22d,

At 7:30 o'clock.

Tickets, $1 00; single admission, 50 cents.

AT THE REQUEST OF SEVERAL GENTLEMEN prominently connected with the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, together with many citizens of Portland, the Rev. Thomas Condon has consented to give TWO LECTURES as above indicated.

Mr. Condon has devoted much of his time and talent in reading up the buried history of Eastern Oregon. So far as the interesting science of Geology (of which he is an enthusiastic student) could aid him, he has done more for Oregon, Geologically, than all others, and to show appreciation for past services as well as to aid him to prosecuting further search, the net proceeds of these Lectures will be for Mr. C.'s sole benefit. Therefore show your appreciation of honest worth and fill the house to overflowing.

Tickets can be had at the bookstores of S. J. McCormick and Harris & Holman, and at the office of Oregon Steam Navigation Co.

The services at St. Mary['s Ca]thedral were attended by a large [illegible] people.

ARRIVAL OF VANCOUVER GUESTS

Before the close of these services the [illegible] Corrie arrived from Vancouver with [illegible] guests from that town. The Ce[illegible] Hibernian Benevolent Association [illegible] the 23d U. S. THE BALL.

The Hibernian Benevolent Society gave [their] Eleventh Annual Ball at the [illegible] Armory,—well attended, well managed and [pleas]ant party.

STREET GRADES [illegible] Thursday evening, the [illegible] Portland, adopted a resolution [illegible] order "to give notice [illegible] tees propose to establish [illegible] eral streets of the city [illegible] port of the Committee [illegible] Property and the [illegible] The Surveyor, Mr. J. W. [illegible] plat of streets and profile [illegible] vedic in the above-named [illegible] the official paper [illegible] "This plat contains, in [illegible] intersection of every street [illegible] the grade and surface elevation [illegible] with ordinance No. 52, the base of [illegible] all leveling for the purpose of [illegible] establishing the grades of the streets [illegible] shall be the top of the rail of the [illegible] California Railroad Company's [illegible] point where the said road crosses [illegible] city. In order to avoid the use of [illegible] bers, the elevation of said point shall [illegible] one hundred feet, and all surveys for grades [illegible] be given in the scale of numbers prescribed [illegible] Bench works (stone monuments) were [illegible] at the intersections of various streets [illegible] elevations of each made record of."

AN EXAMPLE.—About fifteen months ag[o a] gentleman who thought he foresaw the [illegible] real estate which has since taken place [illegible] city, purchased on speculation [illegible] Couch's Addition, paying for it $1,466—[illegible] then thought by many to be [illegible] almost a fancy price. A few months after [illegible] under the stimulating influence of the [illegible] road prospects for the west side [illegible] sold one quarter of the block for $1,066 [illegible] shortly after another quarter for $1,524 [illegible] maining half block was sold yesterday for $[illegible] The aggregate increase in only [illegible] than four hundred per cent. The quarter [illegible] which was first sold for $1,066 was [illegible] short time for $1,640, and could not [illegible] bought for that sum. This is but one ex[ample] out of many which might be mentioned [to illus]trate the effect of a mere prospect of a [illegible] railroad.

RAILROAD INCORPORATION.—Articles [incorpor]ating the "Portland, Dalles & Salt Lake [illegible] company" were filed in the County Clerk's [illegible] Thursday, March 16th, capital stock, $2[illegible] 000, in shares of $100 each. The names [ap]pended as incorporators are: M. S. Burrell [illegible] Stitzel, A. Myers, A. E. Wait, Wm. H. [illegible] kins, J. B. Price, Wm. Cree, John M. Bre[illegible] White, C. Billie, H. Boyd, E. Corbett [illegible] Steel, Phil. Wasserman, W. W. Chapman [illegible] Williams, A. P. Dennison, J. C. Hawthorn[e] [illegible] Wilcox, I. Tut, Smith, S. J. McCormick [illegible] Carter, Jos. Kellogg, H. L. Pittock, E. J. [illegible] tuck, Thos. A. Savier, Henry Friedling, [illegible] Northrup, J. M. Gilman, J. P. Congle [illegible] Masters, T. J. Carter, E. Hamilton, Chas [illegible] man, Josiah Failing.

USEFUL AND CONVENIENT.—We have [been] shown a late patent, an Adjustable Filter [illegible] is used to cleanse and purify water. [illegible] fitted to any faucet, and by allowing the [water] to pass slowly through it, will make cold [illegible] water fit for use, perfectly clean and free fr[om] deposits, etc. The agent is in town an[d will] canvass for the same immediately.

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 18, 1871.

CITY.

CELEBRATION OF ST PATRICK'S DAY

THE DAY UNPROPITIOUS

The day was most unpropitious yesterday for a celebration of any kind, in doors or out. But, notwithstanding this, our Irish American fellow citizens turned out in considerable numbers and with admirable pluck put their programme through The services at St. Mary's Cathedral were attended by a large concourse of people.

ARRIVAL OF VANCOUVER GUESTS

Before the close of these services the steamer Carrie arrived from Vancouver with the expected guests from that town. The Carrie brought the Hibernian Benevolent Association of Vancouver, the 23d U S Infantry Band, and numerous others who came as participants or spectators These were met at the foot of Washington street by the officers of the day and delegations from the Irish organizations of this city In a short time the procession, consisting of the Emmet Guard, (headed by one of the Portland bands) Hibernian Benevolent Society and Fenian Brotherhood marched down Washington street to welcome and escort their Vancouver guests

THE PROCESSION

Was then formed, with the Marshal of the Day, P Burke at the head, followed by the 23d Infantry Band, then the Emmet Guard, Capt Johnston, the Portland Hibernian Benevolent Society, the Fenian Brotherhood, the Portland band, invited guests, officers and orator of the day etc The procession moved through Front to Oak, thence to First, thence to Oro Fino Theater

ORATION

Mr P O C Newell, President of the day, introduced the Orator of the day, Mr Jas. O'Meara who delivered, without manuscript or notes, an address of over an hour in length The speaker was quite felicitous in his remarks and frequently gave utterance to such real bursts of eloquence as roused the vast audience to applause, long loud and rapturous After Mr O'Meara had ended, Mr. Newell made a few remarks and then the assemblage retired to the street.

MARCH THROUGH THE STREETS

The procession was again formed in the order as before, and while the bands played appropriate music, it marched through several of the principal streets, to St. Mary's Academy Here, the Sisters and their pupils sang a hymn, the band performed an air and the crowd gave three cheers Thence the procession moved to the Episcopal residence to pay respects to His Grace Archbishop Blanchet, who appeared and made his acknowledgements.

THE DINNER

The procession then wended its way to the ... House where dinner was served to the celebrating societies and their guests About an hour was spent at the table discussing the viands, giving and responding to toasts, etc.

DEPARTURE OF GUESTS.

The time having arrived for the Vancouver guests to depart for home, they were accompanied to the river landing where the usual parting ceremonies were exchanged, and the steamer left. During all these exercises the ranks of the several organizations were quite full, and the universal remark on the street was that the demonstration was unexpectedly imposing, and was in every way very creditable to the managers and participants

THE SONS OF ST PATRICK AT BANQUET.

A large number of the Sons of St. Patrick, and invited guests, assembled at the St Charles Hotel last night and partook of an elegant and sumptuous banquet, prepared by mine host Mr. Jacobs In the proper order of things a series of toasts was offered and responded to in the following order

The Day we Celebrate—Its return is hailed with joy by every son of Erin

Oh the sweet round memory's throng,
When time and distance gild the way,
To-night the years that long have flown,
And view them o'er on Patrick's Day.

Music—"St. Patrick's Day;" response by Dr.

5 Oregon, the Garden of the West—Music, Oh Come to the West.

12 Our Invited Guests, respected by all who know them Let the Bumper Pass, response by S Pennoyer.

THE BALL

The Hibernian Benevolent Society gave their Annual Ball at the Washington Guard's armory—well attended, well managed and pleasant party

GRADES IN EAST PORTLAND —On Thursday evening, the Board of Trustees of East Portland adopted a resolution directing the Recorder to give notice that the Board of Trustees to establish the grades for the several streets of the city in accordance with the report of the Committee on Streets and Public Property and the plats of the City Surveyor. The Surveyor, Mr. J. W. Webber, has proposed a plat of streets and profile grades which is referred to in the above named resolution. The Bulletin, the official paper for East Portland, says This plat contains, in red and black inks at the of every street within those limits, the grade and surface elevations. In accordance with No. 32, the base of observation in for the purpose of establishing or re-establishing the grades of the streets of the city shall be the top of the rail of the Oregon and California Railroad Company's railroad at the point where the said road crosses L street in the city In order to avoid the use of minus numbers, the elevation of said point shall be called one hundred feet, and all surveys for grades shall be given in the scale of numbers predicated thereon. Bench marks (stone monuments) were located at the intersections of various streets, and the elevations of each made record of"

AN EXAMPLE —About fifteen months ago, a gentleman who thought he foresaw the rise in real estate which has since taken place in this city purchased on speculation block 127 in 's Addition, paying for it $1,450—a price then thought by many to be very high, in fact, almost a fancy price A few months afterwards, under the stimulating influence of the better rail road prospects for the west side, the purchaser sold one quarter of the block for $1,000, and shortly after another quarter for $1 250 The remaining half block was sold yesterday for $3,500 The aggregate increase is only fifty dollars less than four hundred per cent The quarter block which was first sold for $1,000 was resold in a short time for $1,600, and could not now be bought for that sum This is but one example out of many which might be mentioned to illustrate the effect of a mere prospect of a west side railroad

RAILROAD INCORPORATION —Articles incorporating the "Portland, Dallas & Salt Lake railroad company" were filed in the County Clerk's office, Thursday, March 16th, capital stock, $20,000, in shares of $500 each The names appended as incorporators are M S Burrell, Jacob Stitzel A Myers, A E Wait, Wm H Watkins, J B Price, Wm Cree John M Breck, L White C Bills, H Boyd, E Corbett, James Steel Phil Wasserman, W W Chapman, D W Williams, A P Dennison, J C. Hawthorne, R Wilcox, I. Pat Smith S J McCormick, Ct M Carter Joe Kellogg, H L Pittock E, D Shattuck Thos A Savier, Henry Everding, E J Northrup, T J. Carter, E Hamilton, Chas Holman, Josiah Failing

USEFUL AND CONVENIENT —We have been shown a late patent, an Adjustable Filter, which is used to cleanse and purify water It can be attached to any faucet, and by allowing the water to pass slowly through it, will make quite muddy water fit for use, perfectly clear and free from all impurities, etc. The agent is in town and will canvass for the same immediately

It will be seen that the time has been again postponed, This has been done in order to give our friends an opportunity to attend the Rev Mr. Condon's lecture on Geology, which is to take place on Wednesday evening, at which time the concert was to have taken place The committee are determined to make this an occasion of pleasure to those who may attend, and have been laboring for some time to this end, and the success which has attended these concerts in the past is a sufficient guaranty for this one

The subjoined items are from the Catholic Sentinel:

To-morrow, Sunday, March 19th, the Catholic Church celebrates the feast of St. Joseph, named by a decree of His Holiness, Pope Pius IX, issued on the 8th of December, 1870, Patron of the Universal Church.

On next Saturday, March 25th, the Catholic Church celebrates the feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary It was on this day that the Word was made flesh and Mary became the Mother of God It was on this day that the holy angel appeared to Mary, saluting her with the words. "Hail Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with thee." On this feast, being a holy day of obligation, on which all who can should abstain from servile work and hear Mass, Masses will be said in the Cathedral Church at six, eight and ten o'clock.

Exuberant Health

Is a blessing vouchsafed to few. Even those who have been favored by nature with strong constitutions and vigorous frames are apt to neglect the precaution necessary to preserve these precious endowments. Indeed, as a rule the more healthy a man is, the more liberties he is inclined to take with his own physique It is some consolation to the naturally weak and feeble to know that they can be so invigorated and built up by a proper use of the means which science has placed at their disposal, as to have a much better chance of long life and exemptions from disease and pain, than the most athletic of their fellows who are foolish enough to suppose them selves invulnerable and act accordingly

It is not too much to say that more than half the people of the civilized world need an occasional tonic, to enable them to support the strain upon their bodies and minds, which the fast life of this restless age occasions In fact, a pure wholesome, unexciting tonic is the grand desideratum of the busy millions, and they have the article in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters It is a staminal medicine, i o it imparts permanent strength to weak systems and invigorates delicate constitutions Its reputation and its sales have steadily increased Competitive preparations have been introduced ad libitum and, as far as the public is concerned, ad nauseum, in the hope of rivaling it, but they have all either perished in the attempt or been left in the rear It has been the great medical success of the present century, and it is quite certain that no proprietary medicine in this country is so widely known or as generally used

Ten lightning presses, running incessantly (Sunday excepted) the whole year through barely supply the demand for the Illustrated Almanac in which the nature and uses of the preparation are set forth, the circulation now being over eight millions a year

The Storm-Signal System.

In [illegible] Monthly a series of articles have recently appeared on "Weather Telegrams and Storm Forecasts," written by Prof. [illegible] Maury, which are [illegible] and deserved attention, as presenting in an intelligible and interesting form, a matter in which the whole community is deeply interested. In his opening article Prof. Maury [illegible] that storms move in obedience to law, sustaining the position by [illegible] practical and conclusive. In his second article he demonstrates that this law is that formulated by the eminent meteorologist, Wm. C. Redfield, namely, "that the storms on the American coast are of a [illegible], that they are progressive whirlwinds, moving forward on the line of an incurving spiral at a considerable rate, and that they revolve in the northern hemisphere from east to west, against the hands of a watch, and in the southern hemisphere from west to east, with the hands of a watch." This law Prof. Maury regards as holding good with land storms also, and he argues that east of the Rocky Mountains, where disturbing elements do not largely exist, it may be applied successfully in a system of storm forecasts.

These conclusions are of the utmost importance in connection with the present attempt to establish a storm-signal system in this country. This system has already proved eminently successful, but if extended so as to embrace the services of experts in meteorological science, it may be made productive of results of vast benefit to the whole country. It has been shown that under this system the weather can be forecast a day or two in advance, and this fact alone can be made immensely valuable to the interests of commerce, and in certain [illegible] to agriculture as well. In one [illegible] Maury [illegible] that our system [illegible] that of England, [illegible] scientific [illegible] and it is to be hoped that Congress will not hesitate to extend to it the encouragement and support necessary to give it the utmost possible efficiency.

San Domingo.

[From the Marysville (Cal.) Appeal.]

The accounts thus far published concerning the investigations made by the San Domingo Commission appear to be favorable to the annexation project. The jobs that were not only hinted at but openly charged by the opponents of annexation in which officers of the United States Government were said to be interested, are found by the commission to have no existence in fact. It is true that many valuable franchises have been disposed of to private individuals and speculators, but this was to have been expected as the natural result of the prospects of annexation. The adventurous American does not wait until a [illegible] is accomplished before entering into [illegible] of this character, but is willing [illegible] to "take the chances" and makes his calculations and arrangements beforehand. The San Domingo annexation scheme has been a matter of public discussion for a long time, and it is [illegible] indeed it would be singular to be otherwise—that speculators, to whom large fortunes in the event of its success, should rush to San Domingo and gobble up everything in the way of a franchise, that the loosely conducted government of that island would give, or its pecuniary necessities would force it to sell "at a bargain." To this cause we have no doubt it will transpire, is due the granting of the great number of franchises and special privileges of which the Commissioners find evidence. It is stated that Senator Wade and Dr. Howe, from the evidence thus far before them, are both in favor of annexation. This fact has been communicated by the latter to Senator Wilson, who has made it public. Dr. Howe is a personal friend of Senator Sumner, and was appointed on the Commission by the President, as an earnest of his desire that the investigation should be fairly and impartially conducted. His letter states that the Commissioners are satisfied that the opposition to annexation was stirred up by the Haytien Government, and Dr. Howe thinks that the Naboth who covets his neighbor's vineyard lives near the Haytien border and not in the United States; that Hayti desires to acquire Dominica, and hence her opposition to the United States securing the territory. Dr. Howe further states that he has not seen an individual on the Island who is against annexation; and is of the opinion that Cabral draws much of his support from Hayti. Ben. Wade has also written to Vice President Colfax, speaking in the highest terms of the country, but, so far as is known, without giving his opinion on the subject of annexation. From this date it seems altogether probable that the Commission will report favorably upon the proposed project of annexation, and fully sustain the views so strongly expressed by President Grant on the subject. The Commission will not return until the middle of April, and their report cannot therefore be acted upon until the next Congress meets, but there is little room for doubt that before the present year is numbered with the past, San Domingo will be ours. It will be only a step, but a most important one, in the grand march of that "manifest destiny" which has decreed that the Stars and Stripes shall float over our territory from the Arctic circle to the Isthmus of Darien.

LAND DEPARTMENT

OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD

COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned:

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd-numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminus with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect.
